STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), provides the procedure to be followed in all criminal proceedings.

2. Section 156 of the said Code provides that any officer in charge of a police station may, without the order of a Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case which a Court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter XIII of the said Code which deals with the jurisdiction of the Criminal Courts in inquires and trials.

When a private complaint alleging the offence under the penal law is filed before the Magistrate, the Magistrate may take cognizance of the offence under the provisions of section 190 of the Code of Criminal Procedure or proceed further in enquiry or trial. A Magistrate, who is otherwise competent to take cognizance of the complaint, without taking cognizance under the said section 190 of the said Code, who may direct an investigation of the complaint under sub-section (3) of section 156 of the said Code.

3. In several cases in connection with the public servants, it is observed that the power under sub-section (3) of section 156 of the said Code has been exercised by the Magistrate in a mechanical or causal manner. It is also observed that, in the private complaints filed against the public servants wherein allegation of misconduct and commission of offences during performance of their official duties are made, particularly, in the alleged offences under the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 (49 of 1988), the Schedule Castes and Schedule Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 (33 of 1989) and the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (45 of 1860), some mischievous elements in the society are using such complaints as a tool to harass and demoralize the public servants.

It is settled law that, when a complaint under section 190 is moved before the Magistrate, making allegations against the public servant, that too in the discharge of his official duties, it is incumbent on the part of the Magistrate to ensure necessity of legal sanction as contemplated under section 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, as well as under the other relevant provisions of any other law for the time being in force. However, it is observed that the mandate of sanction for prosecution of the public servant has not been followed scrupulously by the concerned Magistrate. Hence, it is necessary to protect the public servant who acted in good faith while performing his duties; otherwise it would not be possible for a public servant to discharge his duties without fear and favour. Therefore, the Government of Maharashtra considers it expedient to make express provisions regarding previous sanction for prosecution of public servant by suitably amending sections 156 and 190 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974).

4. The Bill is intended to achieve the above objectives.
